Rotary Sponsors Young Persons for the Atlantic Youth Forum

Last year, Victor Crumbly, President of Rotaract of Grand Cayman, attended the Atlantic Youth Forum and was very impressed. He said "I was excited about the opportunity to say the least. I carried out only a minimum amount of research on the conference, I felt that this would help in terms of being open to new experiences and ideas. I attended a few conferences before but nothing like Wilton Park. The organization and level of professionalism on display at Wilton Park is like none other, its immaculate. The conference is filled with dynamic speakers from across the globe, complete tours of London, and excellent networking opportunities. An important note of the conference is that participants are only allowed to attend once in order to maximize its reach. It's an excellent opportunity for young people to gather with other young individuals from all over the world, to discuss and develop strategies to issues that affect not only them but the entire world. Without a doubt, Wilton Park is the experience to help get you out of the box and onto the global scale. "

Two new potential young leaders are to be selected from Cayman and sponsored by Rotary to attend the ATLANTIC YOUTH FORUM at Wilton Park in England from Monday 3rd August until Friday 7th August. Sponsorship will cover travel, accommodation and conference costs and those interested are invited to submit their applications to Michael Levitt at mlevitt@solomonharris.com or Stephanie Foster at Stephanie.Foster@fosters-

From Manager to Leader

Ask anyone and they'll tell you. There's a difference between managers and leaders

Submitted by Shannon Sylvestre

Ask someone what the difference is and they may have a bit more difficulty. Suddenly the words become undefined. Somehow leadership is an intangible - a charismatic quality that some people have and others simply don't. That's why, according to "them", it's rare.

Wrong.

The difference between being a manager and a leader is simple. Management is a career. Leadership is a calling.

You don't have to be tall, well spoken and good looking (although we're fortunate to have a leader like that) to be a successful leader. You don't have to have that "special something" to fill the leadership role. What you have to have is clearly defined convictions and, more important, the courage of your convictions to see them become reality. Only when you understand your role as guide, based on your most deeply held truths, can you move from manager to leader.

Whether the group you oversee is called employees, associates, co-workers, team mates or anything else, what they're looking for is someone who they can give their trust to. Someone they know is working for the greater good - for them and for the organization. They're looking for someone not only that they can, but that they want to follow. Because it's only when you have followers - people who have placed their trust in you - that you know you've moved into that leadership role. You're achieving what you always dreamed could be achieved and, not only that, it's easier than you thought, because you're a leader. The classic command and control management model is no longer in play. Sure, controls are in place and sure, you're solving problems that arise, but it's not just you alone. You have the people in whom you've put your trust - and who have happily reciprocated - to help you create organizational success.

Any type of manager can excel when leading a team of Michael Jordans, Shaquille O'Neals and Kobe Bryants, but when the results are falling, how easy is it to mistakenly conclude that the team is to blame.

Managers who step into or even assemble an employee dream team can certainly be happy in their success. But the managers who can take any ragtag collection of players and inspire them to personal and collective greatness, those are the legendary leaders.

Wednesday Morning Funny

A middle-aged woman had a heart attack and was taken to the hospital. While on the operating table, she had a near death experience. Seeing God, she asked, "Is my time up?" God said, "No, you have another 43 years, two months and eight days to live." Upon recovery, the woman decided to stay in the hospital and have a face-lift, liposuction and tummy tuck. Since she had so much more time to live, she figured she might as well look even nicer. After her last operation, she was released from the hospital. While crossing the street on her way home, an ambulance killed her. Arriving in front of God, she demanded, "I thought you said I had another 40 years? Why didn't you pull me out of the path of that ambulance?" God replied, "Girl, I didn't recognize you"
